Rich spoke to the contractor on Friday and gave him the penalty demand (revised slightly based on the changes he and I discussed on Friday). The contractor seemed to focus on the RCRA violation for some reason. Rich asked if they were going to hire an attorney and the contractor was going to talk to the client about it, but I got the sense that he was still pushing to resolve it without counsel. So, for right now, the meeting for Thursday morning is still on.

I'm thinking that we should wait until tomorrow to see if anything changes (i.e., whether they retain counsel) and if they do not, we should send a note both within the Region and to DC updating them on where the case is and of the anticipated Thursday meeting-what do you think?
Thanks,

Dan
